

The project aims to generate tangible results:

- A new and innovative European model for the development of role models to promote and support culturally competent and compassionate care;
- A work based training curriculum for healthcare leaders in culturally competent and compassionate care leadership;
- Learning tools for healthcare leaders in culturally competent and compassionate care;
- A validated measurement tool for self assessing individuals' level of culturally competent compassion in care;
- An online education and training platform;
- A network of exchanging ideas and transferring good practices.

CARE PROFESSIONALS'
CAPACITY TO DELIVER
CULTURALLY
COMPETENT AND COMPASSIONATE CARE

Compassionate Leadership

The European Model is aiming to enable the nurses' and other health professionals' leaders (senior nurses and other health professionals, teachers and ward managers) to develop their mentorship and support roles in order to promote a clinical/caring environment culture which enables their staff to deliver culturally competent and compassionate services to all patients/clients.

The European Model can be downloaded at <http://ieneproject.eu/compassion.php>

Self-assessment tool for measuring culturally competent compassion

The valid and reliable tool, created and tested in seven countries, is available on the IENE website

Training curriculum for healthcare leaders

The curriculum was designed according to the results of the reviewed literature, the need analysis and it is guided by the European model.

The curriculum will consist of two units of learning.

The curriculum will be piloted and tested in seven countries: United Kingdom, Romania, Denmark, Italy, Turkey, Spain and Cyprus.

A set of seven tools to be used for learning unit 1 and seven tools for learning unit 2 will be created, piloted and evaluated.

To see the tools, click on the components in the Model on the IENE website
